CSS Merge is a Firefox extension that provides "a new frontend to the built-in Firefox Stylish extension" with the potential to save users time when editing the look of a website. Allows users to quickly and easily override individual style rules for multiple elements on a website. CSS Merge functions by utilizing the CSS Lint extension, which looks for style rules on any page you visit, so it's easier to make changes to the rules and create a custom style sheet to be applied to a website. While using CSS Merge, you don't need to manually load a style sheet: CSS Merge takes care of that for you. Any style rules that are found on the site you visit are then saved to a new style sheet and applied to the elements on the page.
